What is HomeSight

HomeSight leverages people’s remaining vision through the use of proprietary rehabilitative therapy and disease management protocols. Using the HomeSight program, patients and clinicians work together facilitating a safe and friendly living environment conducive to the unique challenges of low vision.

Backed by more than 14 years of research and experience, the program consistently demonstrates improved functional independence, including management of medications, personal care, nutrition, and safety in the home and living environment. The emotional result runs much deeper as patients regain their dignity and confidence, while preserving their ability to stay in their cherished residence.
